SUBJECT: HUD Computer-Based Neighborhood Networks

INFORMATION: HUD's Neighborhood Networks are innovative private/public partnerships establishing computer-based multi-service centers to help people in public and assisted housing learn critical computer skills and prepare for 21st century jobs. HUD residents can enhance their computer literacy, launch new careers, make the transition from welfare to work, have expanded access to needed health services, and participate in inter-generational learning activities.

HUD's strategy is to have housing officials partner with computer hardware, software, Internet and technical companies to create computer centers in public and assisted housing communities. Residents take classes, work on homework, and learn computer skills. There are 23 of these computer multi-service centers in HUD-funded apartment complexes throughout Oregon. For SDSD and AAA clients living in public housing these centers can be an excellent resource for a variety of self-sufficiency activities. Attached is a list of the centers in Oregon.
